SUMMARY

In the first part, this paper tries to identify MSS quoted by Heinsius as “unus meus” in his 1659 edition of Ovid’s Metamorphoses. In the second part, the MS quoted as “Oxoniensis” or “Balliolensis” is identified as the long-lost Oxoniensis Balliol College 142 (=O18).

RESUMEN

En la primera parte, este artículo trata de identificar los manuscritos citados por Heinsius como “unus meus” en su edición de las Metamorfosis de Ovidio de 1659. En la segunda, el manuscrito citado como “Oxoniensis” o “Balliolensis” es identificado con el perdido Oxoniensis Balliol College 142 (=O18).

While preparing his edition of Ovid, Nicolaus Heinsius collated a massive number of MSS.¹ But it is well known that he usually referred to them by relatively vague terms such as “primus Vaticanus”, “unus Palatinus” or “unus ex melioribus”. Major progress has been made in the identification of Heinsius’s MSS,² but there is still some work to be done.

1. “VNVS MEVS”

In the first half of this paper, I will try to identify the specific MSS of the Metamorphoses Heinsius referred to as “unus meus” or “unus ex meis”, i.e. MSS that at some point were in his possession.³ Some of them have been identified without a shadow of doubt by Reeve,⁴ except O4:⁵

² The task began with D.A. Slater (“Some Codices Vossiani and the Metamorphosis of Ovid”, CR 29, 1915, 174–8; Towards a Text of the Metamorphosis of Ovid, Oxford 1927). It has continued with the contributions of E.H. Alton (“The Zulichemianus, Mazarinianus, and other MSS of the Fasti of Ovid”, Hermathena 44, 1926, 101–18), F. Munari (“Codici Heinsiani degli Amores”, SIFC 1950, 161–5; “Codici inglesi delle Metamorfosi”, Philologus 100, 1956, 312–15; “Manoscritti Ovidiani di N. Heinsius”, SIFC 29, 1957, 98–114 & 265; “Identificazioni di codici Heinsiani delle Metamorfosi”, in N.I. Herescu (ed.), Ovidiana, Paris 1958, 347–9), F.W. Lenz (“Die Wiedergewinnung der von Heinsius benutzten Ovidhandschriften in den letzten fünfzig Jahren”, Eranos 53, 1953, 66–88; “Eine übersehene Ovidhandschrift des Nicolaus Heinsius”, Eranos 55, 1957, 60–1; “Die Wiedergewinnung der von Heinsius benutzten Ovidhandschriften II”, Eranos 61, 1963, 98–120), E. Hulshoff Pol (“Heinsius et Ovide”, Eranos 53, 1955, 78–80), D.E.W. Wormell (“The identification of the manuscripts of Ovid’s Fasti known to Heinsius”, Hermathena 93, 1959, 38–62), H. Boese (“Zu den Ovidkollationen des N. Heinsius”, Philologus 106, 1962, 154–73), M.D. Reeve (“Heinsius’s manuscripts of Ovid”, RhM 117, 1974, 133–66; “Heinsius’s Manuscripts” [1976]), W.S. Anderson (“Identification of another Heinsian Manuscript”, CQ 26, 1976, 113–14) and L. Rivero García (“N. Heinsius’ fragmentum Caesenae of Ovid’s Metamorphoses Rediscovered”, CQ 66, 2016, 384–94). The documents prepared by Dr. Bellido available at the website mentioned in n. 5 are very useful.

³ That “unus meus” does not mean “one MS collated by me”, but “one MS owned by me”, is shown by expressions such as “unus ex meis Mediolani emptus” and confirmed on the strength of readings (see below). Cf. also, e.g., Lenz, “Die Wiedergewinnung I”, 76; “Die Wiedergewinnung II”, 105, 115 (s.v. “Heinsianus”).

⁸ Reeve, “Heinsius’s manuscripts” (1974), 153.

⁹ Reeve, “Heinsius’s manuscripts” (1974), 152.

¹⁰ Reeve, “Heinsius’s manuscripts” (1974), 151.

¹¹ Reeve, “Heinsius’s manuscripts” (1974), 151.

¹² Reeve, “Heinsius’s manuscripts” (1974), 153. He (n. 78) states that 3.397-4.358 went missing after Heinsius collated the MS. Certainly, Heinsius’s collation does not break off after 3.396.

11.643, 14.208, 568 “meus chartaceus”; 12.69 “in meo chartaceo, qui ad fidem libri vetustioris erat descriptus”; 13.271 “unus meus ex melioribus”; 14.494 “meus chartaceus ex vetusto descriptus”.

O15 (Bodl. Auct. F.2.4, s. XV; met. 3.475-14.184; desiderantur 9.123-13.282) “fragmentum chartaceum quod Langermannus mihi donavit, incipit pag. 70 usque p. 226 et a pag. 332 usque 365” [o4, siglum w];¹³ not. ad 6.537 “unus meus chartaceus”.

I believe that Gf7 must also have been in Heinsius’s possession:

Gf7 (Guelferbytanus Bibl. Duc. 4463 [159 Gud. Lat. 4^o], s. XIII) “Codex Reginae 500 [annorum]” [o2, siglum F]. The identification as one of the MSS owned by Heinsius is suggested by the readings quoted at 6.82, 7.427, 772, 9.669, 12.137, 13.232 (doubtful), 664 (doubtful), 15.520.¹⁴

Four additional MSS belonged to Heinsius, but only one did he quote as “unus meus”:

B8 (Berolinensis Diez B Sant. 11, s. XIII) “Excerpta codicis membranacei Andini Ampl. V. Claudii Menardi mecum communicavit Gronovius noster” [b2, sine siglo]; not. ad 6.200 “ut iam vidit in Observationibus sagacissimus Gronovius ex Menardi codice, qui munificentia politissimi Aegidii Menagii nunc est meus”; 14.681 “quem ab Aegidio Menagio viro cultissimi ingenii munus accepi”.¹⁵ On f. 1r Heinsius wrote: “Nicolai Heinsii. Donum V. CL. Aegidii Menagii”. He usually called it “codex Menardi”. It is possible that he referred to it as “meus” at 10.359, 12.369, 13.299 (doubtful), 532 and 15.625.

¹⁴ This is also suggested by the readings quoted by Burman at 4.405, 12.156 and 13.44 (see pp. 88, 104). I hypothesize that Heinsius may have obtained this MS, as well as the “alter Reginae” (O9), as payment from Queen Christina of Sweden. Apparently, such a gift is documented in Heinsius’s own hand on f. 2 of the Mazarinianus of Fasti, Bodl. Auct. F.4.25 (cf. E.H. Alton, D.E.W. Wormell, E. Courtney, “A Catalogue of the Manuscripts of Ovid’s Fasti”, BICS 24, 1977, 37-63, 53 no. 106). See J.A. Sibbald, “The Heinsiana—Almost a Seventeenth-Century Universal Short Title Catalogue”, in M. Walsby, N. Constantinidou (eds.), Documenting the Early Modern Book World: Inventories and Catalogues in Manuscript and Print, Leiden-Boston 2013, 141-59, 144. Read also, e.g., what Isaac Vossius wrote to Heinsius in 1655 (P. Burman, Sylloge epistolarum a viris illustribus scriptarum, Leidae 1727, III, 679-80): “De pecunia tamen despero, sed picturis, libris, gemmis, aliis rebus, ut puto, compensabitur. [...] Interim ita habeas velim, si non aere aut argento, saltem aliis rebus Serenissam Reginam compensaturam esse summam, quam tibi addixit.”

¹⁵ The “codex Menardi” was first identified with B8 by R.J. Tarrant, “Review Article: Editing Ovid’s Metamorphoses: Problems and Possibilities”, CPh 77, 1982, 342-60, 345 n. 17. See also A. Ramírez de Verger, “El codex Menardi de N. Heinsius y P. Burmannus”, in E. Borrell Vidal, O. de la Cruz Palma (edd.), Omnia mutantur. Canvi, transformació i pervivència en la cultura clàssica, en les seves llengües i en el seu llegat, Barcelona 2016, II, 115-26.

- O (Oxonienis Bodl. Auct. F.4.30, s. XII; met. 3.75-3.182, 4.101-15.879; desiderantur 7.604-8.62, 8.279-9.578, 15.8-115 [non 117], 222-329, 765-872) “fragmentum quod Cl. Boxhornius mihi donavit scriptum ante annos DC in quo maior pars Metamorphoseos extabat” [o, siglum b].¹⁶ On f. 1r Heinsius wrote: “Ovidij Fragmentum Boxhornianum. Contuli NH”. Apparently, he never referred to it as “meus”.
- O5 (Oxonienis Bodl. D’Orville 171, s. XIII; met. 2.485-15.852) “Codex Vossianus eiusdem aetatis [sc. D annorum]. Incipit lib. II fab. Calistus [sic]” [o, siglum I].¹⁷ It has the note “NH. Vidi.” on f. IIIv. It could be identified with no. 340 (p. 88) in the Bibliotheca Heinsiana “earundem libri secundi pars & reliqui omnes M. S. in pergam.”¹⁸ It was certainly one of the “Vossiani” (e.g. 4.17, 523, 9.778, 10.213), but I do not think it was quoted as “unus meus” (but cf. the note on 7.372).¹⁹
- O6 (Oxonienis Bodl. Auct. F.4.31, s. XIII²; met. 1.647-8.56). It has the note “NH. Vidi.” on f. 4v. This has been identified with no. 338 (p. 88) in the Bibliotheca Heinsiana “Metamorphoseon libri I. pars. Integri qui sequuntur sex, & pars octavi, M. S. in pergameno” by Madan, Summary Catalogue, III, 19 no. 8862. It is not quoted as “unus meus”.²⁰

In the following pages, I provide a list of every mention of “unus meus” in Heinsius’s notes on Ovid’s Metamorphoses in his 1659 edition²¹ and try to identify the MS at hand in each case.²² Nevertheless, in some places, readings quoted by Heinsius from “unus meus” are not to be found in any of the ¹⁶ Slater, Towards a Text, 33. The contents of the MS were the same when Heinsius collated it.

¹⁷ Cf. Munari, “Codici inglesi”, 313.

¹⁸ I have been able to trace references to nine MSS of the met. in the Bibliotheca Heinsiana sive Catalogus Librorum, quos, magno studio, & sumptu, dum viveret, collegit vir illustris Nicolaus Heinsius, Dan. fil., Lugduni Batavorum 1682, II. Besides the cases of O5 and O6, only another entry allows a certain identification with the MSS mentioned above: O is no. 339 on p. 88: “earundem fragmentum Boxhornianum M.S. in pergameno”. I find references to four complete MSS: p. 68 “Metamorphoses M. S.” (no. 93; tentatively identified with O12 by Madan, Summary Catalogue, III, 18 no. 8858); p. 88 “iidem & Virgilio Aeneis M. S. in pergam.” (no. 343; tentatively identified with O4 by Madan, Summary Catalogue, III, 17 no. 8854); p. 98 “earundem libri omnes M. S. in pergam.” (no. 341), “iidem M. S. in pergam.” (no. 342). And to two more mutili: p. 68 “Eadem M. S. cui liber unus atque alter deest” (no. 99; tentatively identified with O15 by Madan, Summary Catalogue, III, 18 no. 8859); “Fragmenta librorum quorundam Ovidii M. S. in pergameno” (no. 346). I had overlooked the identification, most kindly pointed out by one referee, of no. 338 and 340 with O6 and O5 respectively.

¹⁹ Of course, Heinsius could have acquired it after 1659.

²⁰ Nor, as far as I know, it has been identified with any MS quoted in Heinsius’s notes. See also n. 19.

²¹ N. Heinsius, P. Ovidii Nasonis Operum Tomus II qui Metamorphoses complectitur, Amstelaedami 1659.

²² To the best of my ability, I also try to identify the other MSS mentioned. Although this might distract the attention from “unus meus”, it has undeniable documentary value.

aforementioned MSS. It seems likely that he had at his disposal probably two or more MSS (see his note on 10.194) still to be identified (see his notes on 4.221, 6.200, 7.269, 372 [doubtful], 8.221, 9.205, 294, 317, 778, 10.115, 194, 11.554 [doubtful], 15.520, 523), unless they have perished.²³ All this will certainly prove useful to editors and knowing where identification is wanted may facilitate further investigations on the MSS owned by Heinsius.

²³ See also n. 18. There is, of course, the possibility of slips in the reports of readings. Heinsius often collated more than one MS in the same exemplar of a printed edition, assigning a siglum to each one (in another working exemplar, if need be, he would use that siglum again for another MS). In some cases readings and sigla untidily accumulate between lines or in the narrow space allowed by margins (e.g. o is a copy of the Aldine edition of 1533 with the collations of 28 MSS; o4 is a copy of Daniel Heinsius's edition of 1629 with the collation of 47 MSS). All this could lead to confusions at multiple stages: in the act of collation itself, while transferring readings to other volumes (cf. Reeve, "Heinsius's manuscripts" [1974], 135-6 n. 9) or, most of all, while drafting the textual notes (in b3, most likely), not to mention possible mistakes while composing them for the press. See, e.g., Wormell, "The identification of the manuscripts", 41-3. However, in my experience, Heinsius's reports are usually pretty accurate. Burman, on the other hand, misreported more often (cf. R. Merkel, P. Ovidii Nasonis Tristium libri quinque et Ibis, Berolini 1837, XI-XII).

²⁷ This is not B5, f. 29r; O4, f. 27v; Gf4, f. 30v; P8, f. 27r; P9, f. 33v; O9, f. 33r; O15, f. 9v; Gf7, f. 33v; B8, f. 28r; O, f. 3r; O5, f. 19v; O6, f. 26v. It does not seem to be O12 either (see n. 12), because the reading is not attested in o4, p. 90. It would seem that in b3, f. 112r, tenea is actually attributed to “unus Vaticanus”, which I have been unable to trace. See also n. 23.

⁴⁸ The reading of B5 seems revulsus to me, although in a hasty collation the final -s might be confused with a final -m. Apparently, in o2, p. 284, Heinsius assigned this reading to "E", which is B5. In any case, revulsus is certainly not to be found in O4, f. 86r; Gf4, f. 97v; P8, f. 85r; P9, f. 99v; O9, f. 105v; O12, f. 129r; Gf7, f. 106r; B8, f. 93v; O, f. 43r; O5, f. 102r.

2. THE “OXONIENSIS” OR “BALLIOLENSIS”

Reeve rightly identified the long-lost Oxoniensis Balliol College 142 (O18) with the “Codex Collegii Balliolensis Oxoniae eiusdem fere aetatis superiori [sc. ante quadringentos annos scriptus], sed literis admodum minutis scriptus. Codex hic erat mutilus & incipiebat lib. IV. 117”. Heinsius’s collation is extant in b2 (siglum B).⁶¹

However, Munari and Lenz doubted whether the “Balliolensis” could be identified with O18, because Burman reports a reading of the “Balliolensis” as early as 3.69.⁶²

3.69 Aspexit] Inspexit Balliolensis. eadem diversitas notata lib. II. 92.⁶³

However, the report is clearly mistaken. For one thing, at b2, f. 71r, there is no sign of the reading in question. As Ángela Suárez⁶⁴ has suggested, Burman probably read “inspexit B” in b3, f. 80r, and took it for a reading of the “Balliolensis”, which is collated in b2, not b3, under the same siglum. In b3 the siglum B refers to a “codex Regius” (= P3, in which, f. 26rb, I do read inspexit). Burman made exactly the same mistake at 4.405 and 764 (see pp. 88, 101 and n. 23). Except for these cases, the readings from the “Balliolensis” do always match Heinsius's collation in b2. Therefore, I think it is quite safe to take the identification of O18 with the "Balliolensis" as certain.

⁶¹ Reeve, “Heinsius’s Manuscripts” (1974), 150. The catalogue of Balliol MSS states that MS 142 “must have disappeared in the second half of the 17th cent.”: R. Mynors, Catalogue of the Manuscripts of Balliol College Oxford, 1963 (<http://archives.balliol.ox.ac.uk/images/Mynors%20catalogue/Mynors142.jpg> [last accessed 10/09/2019]). The MS was already lost by the time of Coxe’s catalogue (H.O. Coxe, Catalogus codicum mss. qui in collegiis aulisque Oxoniensibus hodie adservantur, Oxonii 1852, I, 43). Reeve (“Heinsius’s Manuscripts” [1976], 77) says that the worst place for a MS to be during and immediately after Heinsius’s lifetime was a “religious house in Padua or a college at Oxford or Cambridge”.

On the other hand, it is noteworthy that the "Balliolensis" is only occasionally mentioned by Burman, while Heinsius makes no reference to it whatsoever. The explanation for this is that they both usually referred to the MS at Balliol College as "Oxoniensis".⁶⁵ The data below prove that the readings quoted from the "Oxoniensis", even individual readings, constantly match Heinsius's collation of the Balliol MS.⁶⁶ Therefore, we can conclude that (1) the lost O18 is indeed the Balliol College MS collated by Heinsius in b2; (2) Heinsius called O18 "Oxoniensis" in his printed notes; (3) Burman sometimes named it "Balliolensis".

Since the MS seems to be lost, any assessment of O18 must rely entirely on Heinsius's collation. Although a fuller report of Heinsius's collation of O18 in b2 would be advisable, I can put forward some interesting facts:

- a. The MS had at least two different hands. See notes on 14.163, 286; 8.173.
- b. It also preserved alternative readings. See notes on 11.278; 8.266, 9.196, 11.240, 12.598.
- c. Apparently, it had some affinity with Heinsius's "Cantabrigensis", which he counted among his "optimi" (also collated in b2, siglum A; probably lost by the beginning of the 18th century).⁶⁷ See, e.g., notes on 6.629, 8.301, 11.27, 278, 13.323, 410; 6.417, 8.213, 539, 11.638, 15.849.⁶⁸
- d. It seems that it also had some affinities with good MSS, such as:

⁶⁵ Obvious as this may seem, as far as I know, it had not been previously recognized. Burman was probably unaware that the "Oxoniensis" and the "Balliolensis" were the same MS, because in his note on 13.844 he mentioned both of them, although for different words (see on pp. 88 and 106). Jahn certainly thought that the "Oxoniensis" and "Balliolensis" of met. were two different MSS (cf. J.C. Jahn, P. Ovidii Nasonis quae supersunt Opera Omnia. Volumen II. Tom. I Metamorphoseon libr. I-VI continens. Lipsiae 1832, xxii: "4. Balliolensis, negligenter inspectus"; xxiii: "69. Oxoniensis"). More recently, for instance, Rivero made the same assumption (cf. n. 94). On the other hand, it is clear that Heinsius's "Oxoniensis" of the Heroides is the Oxoniensis Balliol College 143 (cf. Boese, "Zu den Ovidkollationen", 158). Although Bodl. Auct. F.1.17 (O8) was already in the Bodleian (cf. F. Madan, H.H.E. Craster, A Summary Catalogue of Western Manuscripts in the Bodleian Library at Oxford, Oxford 1922, II.1, 402 no. 2506), it seems that the Balliol MSS were the only ones Heinsius collated for met. and her. in Oxford (being so, he could safely name them "Oxonienses"). Apparently, he also quoted the Bodl. Auct. F.2.14 of Nux both as "Oxoniensis" and "Bodleianus" (cf. Lenz, "Die Wiedergewinnung I", 75, 79).

⁶⁶ There are only two exceptions, 11.180 and 14.713, which will be discussed later.

2.1 THE “BALLIOLENSIS”

The name “Balliolensis” is only used by Burman in a small number of passages. Except for three cases in which he clearly misquoted it (see above), the readings cited match Heinsius’s collation of the MS.

3.69 Aspexit] Inspexit Balliolensis [non in b2, f. 71r; “B” in b3, f. 80r = “codex Regius” = P3, f. 26rb]. eadem diversitas notata lib. II. 92.

2.2 THE “OXONIENSIS” AS QUOTED BY HEINSIUS (1659)⁷¹

The readings from the “Oxoniensis” quoted by Heinsius always match his collation of the Balliol College MS, except in two cases (11.180, 14.713), which I shall discuss ad loc.

⁶⁹ A reading also attested in M2.

⁷¹ I include some notes, preceded by *, printed in Heinsius’s complete notes, which were published in Burman’s edition (1727) and as independent volumes in 1758 (N. Heinsius, Commentarius in P. Ovidii Nasonis Opera Omnia, Lipsiae).

⁷⁶ There, near the inner margin, Heinsius wrote:

onerata pudore ϕ c.

The final "ϕ" closely resembles a "B". I wonder if that could have led Heinsius to a confusion. This would explain why he later attributed the reading to the "Oxonienensis". Cf. n. 23. In any case, I allow myself a small corrigendum to Reeve, "Heinsius's manuscripts" (1974),

150. In the conspectus siglorum of b2, f.10r, we should read the following:

C codex Arundelianus eiusdem quoque aetatis cum superioribus litera satis minuta scriptus: Patricij Iunij, quibus minutum c. ascriptum est. lib. X. XI. XII. ex Arundeliano codice sunt ante quadringentos annos scripto. reliqua propter reditum in patriam in eum conferre non licuit.

It seems that Heinsius began to collate the "Arundelianus" (Ld) using the siglum C, but he only got to collate books 10-12 before returning home. Later on, he collated the "Iunianus" (Et) under the siglum C and substituted c for the former siglum C. This change of sigla can be observed in b2 throughout the collations of books 10 (ff. 270v-297r), 11 (ff. 297r-326r) and 12 (ff. 326v-348r). I checked some readings of books 10 and 11, and C is indeed the "Iunianus" (Et) and c the "Arundelianus" (Ld). The "Arundelianus" is otherwise collated in o (siglum O).

⁷⁷ Rivero (Book XIII, 86-7) points out that this was the reading of "no fewer than 10 edd. beginning with Heinsius' first ed." He also says that cominus has the support of Planudes, who translated ἐγγύθεν. Recently, as Rivero states, Luck argued for cominus, but Rivero persuasively defends eminus.

⁷⁸ See Rivero, Book XIII, 103-5. He points out, again, that the reading of the "Oxon." was favoured by a number of editors and that it could be supported by Planudes (τίς ἂν ἄμεινον τὸν μέγαν διαδέξαιτο Ἀχιλλέα).

⁷⁹ Rivero (Book XIII, 112) considers en preferable, but he is not willing to print it because of its weak manuscript support.

⁸⁵ Cf. Reeve, "Heinsius's manuscripts" (1974), 149 n. 59.

⁸⁶ I have not found this reading in any of Heinsius's Medicei. In b3, f. 446r, he wrote: "ijuvenumque senumque pr. Bonon. et unus Moreti [Av]". In o4 (p. 418), where Heinsius collated almost all his Medicei, the reading is only assigned to the siglum d, which stands for Bo. In o (p. 201), where he collated the "codices Moreti", the reading is assigned to C, i.e. "tertius Moreti" [Av]. Maybe his note should say "unus Moreti", not "unus Medic.". Cf. n. 23.

⁹⁴ Rivero (Book XIII, 63) observed that et furto was the reading of Heinsius's "Balliolensis", although he did not quite identify it with the "Oxonienis" quoted by Burman (see Book XIII, 32 on 13.32 and 72 on 13.50-1).

⁹⁹ I have been unable to trace this among Heinsius's Regii. In b3, f. 379r, Heinsius attested the reading in "sec. Pal. [Hd] & Oxon."

3. SUMMARY OF CONCLUSIONS

To conclude, I shall sum up my most relevant findings:

- (1) Gf7 (Guelferbytanus Bibl. Duc. 4463) was owned by Heinsius and he occasionally named it “unus meus”.
- (2) Thus, the MSS quoted as “unus meus” are (in chronological order): B5, O4, B8, Gf4, Gf7, P8, P9, O9, O12, O15.
- (3) Although they belonged to him, he never quoted as “unus meus” O, O5 (most likely), O6.
- (4) There are probably other MSS that belonged to Heinsius still to be identified. Since we now know where exactly identification is pending, this might encourage new investigations on Heinsius’s manuscripts.
- (5) Heinsius’s “Balliolensis” and “Oxoniensis” were usually regarded as two different MSS, but they were actually a single MS, the lost O18 (Oxoniensis Balliol College 142).
- (6) The readings of O18 are regularly ignored in modern editions, but it was probably an important witness.

I hope these findings and all the data provided will be of some use to editors of Ovid’s Metamorphoses.
